

Driving instruction to Marcolina 84 when you come from Barcelona.

It will take you approximately 2 hours and 20 minutes driving from Barcelona if you take AP-7 (Motorway with tolls). From the airport, look for signs marked TARRAGONA (or VALENCIA).

Remember it is forbidden to use mobile phones when you drive, the Police is very strict and you will be fined. Also, be very careful with speeding, there are many speed cameras and a bad way of spending your money!

==

As you get closer to Alcossebre (after ~2 hours driving) you can exit the AP-7 Motorway at the first of two exits for Alcossebre. We prefer this first (north) exit since it is a bit shorter drive coming from Barcelona.

For this first exit from AP-7, take the Motorway exit number 43 that says PENISCOLA / BENICARLO and then take the "red" 340 Highway (ordinary road) going south for approx 20 minutes. Look for sign that says CASTELLON.

Fig. Exit sign from AP-7 Motorway

After ALCALA XIVERT you will pass on a bridge over the Motorway and shortly after that you will exit for ALCOSSEBRE on your right (note: sharp bend to the right!).

If you miss this first exit, just take the next AP-7 exit number 44 and then take the "red" 340 highway going north instead, marked TARRAGONA and you will find the Alcossebre exit marked on your right hand side. That works fine as well.

Now you should be on your way to Alcossebre:

Just go straight on, you will pass a petrol station with a smaller shopping center on your right.

After about 2 km at roundabout take 2nd exit signed "Las Fuentes"

After about 2 km pass straight over the roundabout where you take 3rd exit marked "Ribamar" and "Ermita Santa Lucia".

At next Roundabout, just go straight over.

Go to end. At T junction turn left towards "Ermita Santa Lucia".

Turn right at "Marcolina" sign (with rubbish containers on your right).

At T Junction turn left (you will see a large blue/purple apartment complex on your Right)

Follow the road round to left and just continue, a slight right turn, and then first street – a bit uphill - on your left. The Villa Marcolina 84 is on your left hand side. Look for a black steel gate and number 84 in black number signs).

Well done, welcome!